

Stories from December 1, 2007 to January 14, 2008 on CGIAR Annual General Meeting 2007. English coverage only. 63 hits.

延伸閱讀：

Ming Pao News Online – 01/10/2008, 16:29 pm

【明報專訊】1. <糧食動亂威脅全球

農產供應半世紀最緊張糧價暴升掀動盪>，《明報》，A19,2007.12.05 2. "Global rush to energy crops threatens to bring food shortages and increase poverty, says UN",The Guardian,2007.

Rising Food Prices Threaten World's Poor People

Science Daily – 01/02/2008, 05:08 am

ScienceDaily (Jan. 2, 2008) Income growth, climate change, high energy prices, globalization, and urbanization are all converging to transform food production, markets, and consumption, according to a new report by the International Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI).

Global Climate Change: Can Agriculture Cope?

Science in Africa – 12/19/2007, 16:18 pm

No one understands better than farmers do how the weather, especially when it takes a turn for the worse, can affect people and their land. That's why farmers around the world have always talked and worried about the weather obsessively.

China's new high-yielding, disease-resistant wheat boosting domestic production as world prices soar

EurekaAlert! – 12/03/2007, 11:25 am

Contact: Jeff Haskins jhaskins@burnesscommunications.com 86-136-931-76573 Chinese scientists responsible for developing innovative wheat varieties recognized with international award for 'Outstanding Agricultural Technology' BEIJING (3 December 2007)--An intensive domestic research effort to bolster China's wheat production has over the last four years produced new high-quality, high-yielding varieties that already have added 2.

China's new high-yielding, disease-resistant wheat boosting domestic production as world prices soar

Calibre Macro World – 12/13/2007, 19:36 pm

BEIJING (3 December 2007)--An intensive domestic research effort to bolster China 's wheat production has over the last four years produced new high-quality, high-yielding varieties that already have added 2.

Rising food prices threaten world's poor people

Calibre Macro World – 12/13/2007, 19:04 pm

Income growth, climate change, high energy prices, globalization, and urbanization are all converging to transform food production, markets, and consumption, according to a new report by the International Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI).

$13m Boost for Women in Agricultural Research

Calibre Macro World – 12/10/2007, 17:56 pm

(The East African/All Africa Global Media via COMTEX) -- A total of 360 women involved with agricultural research in nine countries in Africa, are to benefit from a $13 million career development fund launched by the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research's Gender and Diversity Programme.

$13m Boost for Women in Agricultural Research

TMCnet – 12/09/2007, 20:21 pm

(East African (Kenya) Via Thomson Dialog NewsEdge) A total of 360 women involved with agricultural research in nine countries in Africa, are to benefit from a $13 million career development fund launched by the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research's Gender and Diversity Programme.

$13m Boost for Women in Agricultural Research

AllAfrica.com – 12/13/2007, 01:38 am

A total of 360 women involved with agricultural research in nine countries in Africa, are to benefit from a $13 million career development fund launched by the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research's Gender and Diversity Programme.

Global trust to fund ICRISAT gene bank

The Hindu – 12/12/2007, 17:12 pm

HYDERABAD: The International Crops Research Institute for the Semi-Arid Tropics (ICRISAT) has entered into an agreement with the Global Crop Diversity Trust (GCDT) to ensure long-term availability of funds for the conservation, characterisation and distribution of germ plasm in its gene bank.

Global Trust funds ICRISAT's Genebank

CGIAR – 12/12/2007, 05:19 am

The International Crops Research Institute for the Semi-Arid Tropics (ICRISAT) has entered into an agreement with the Global Crop Diversity Trust (GCDT), to ensure the long-term availability of funds for the conservation, characterization and distribution of germplasm (seeds) in the ICRISAT's Genebank for the benefit of agriculture and food security for mankind.

Africa: $13m Boost for Women in Agricultural Research

All Africa – 12/10/2007, 16:13 pm

Catherine Riungu A total of 360 women involved with agricultural research in nine countries in Africa, are to benefit from a $13 million career development fund launched by the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research's Gender and Diversity Programme.

Plans to curb deforestation need more consideration

Sustain-Online – 12/10/2007, 08:23 am

- Incentives to tackle deforestation and forest degradation can play a key role in combating climate change and requires a strong policy framework that is fair to poor communities, says a new report.

Safaricom IPO may open this year, but run to February

Stockhouse Canada – 12/09/2007, 19:59 pm

By CATHERINE RIUNGU A total of 360 women involved with agricultural research in nine countries in Africa, are to benefit from a $13 million career development fund launched by the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research's Gender and Diversity Programme.

$13m boost for women in agricultural research

Daily Nation – 12/09/2007, 19:20 pm

By CATHERINE RIUNGU A total of 360 women involved with agricultural research in nine countries in Africa, are to benefit from a $13 million career development fund launched by the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research's Gender and Diversity Programme.

Gates boosts women agriculturalists

The New Vision – 12/09/2007, 19:13 pm

By Josephine Maseruka UGANDAN women agricultural scientists will benefit from the $13 million grant (about sh22.6b) from the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation.

Gates Foundation earmarks $13 m for women agricultural research

The Monitor – 12/09/2007, 13:41 pm

KAMPALA UGANDA is among nine countries in Sub-Saharan Africa that will benefit from $13million dollars (about Shs24 billion) given to women by the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation.

Food security should be a policy issue— says report

East African Business Week – 12/09/2007, 09:05 am

Developed countries should provide flexible responses to increasing food prices by eliminating trade barriers and adapting food security as a policy issue, a new report indicates.

Plans to curb deforestation need more consideration

SciDev.Net – 12/08/2007, 03:09 am

[BALI/BEIJING] Incentives to tackle deforestation and forest degradation can play a key role in combating climate change and requires a strong policy framework that is fair to poor communities, says a new report.

RISING FOOD PRICES THREATEN WORLD'S POOR PEOPLE

Guyana Online – 12/07/2007, 00:48 am

Beijing-Income growth, climate change, high energy prices, globalisation, and urbanisation are all converging to transform food production, markets, and consumption, according to a new report by the International Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI).

Increase agricultural research to help poor, stipulates report [Date: 2007-12-06] A new report by the International Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI) states that developed countries must step up internation... read more

Cordis – 12/06/2007, 19:18 pm

Increase agricultural research to help poor, stipulates report [Date: 2007-12-06] A new report by the International Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI) states that developed countries must step up international agricultural research in order to help the world's poor and curb rising food prices.

Chinese scientists get CGIAR award on developing new high-yielding, disease-resistant wheat crop

Associated Press of Pakistan – 12/06/2007, 13:51 pm

An intensive domestic research effort to bolster Chinas wheat production has over the last four years produced new high-quality, high-yielding varieties that already have added 2.

Increase agricultural research to help poor, stipulates report

Cordis – 12/06/2007, 12:59 pm

[Date: 2007-12-06] A new report by the International Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI) states that developed countries must step up international agricultural research in order to help the world's poor and curb rising food prices.

Gates Foundation funds unprecedented $13 million effort to unleash expertis...

Checkbiotech – 12/06/2007, 11:26 am

NAIROBI, Kenya - Confronting the disparity between the role of African women in farming and their limited presence in the agriculture sciences, the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research (CGIAR) Gender & Diversity Program today launched an unprecedented $13 million effort that will support the fast-tracking of careers of at least 360 African women in agricultural research.

Rising food prices threaten world's poor people

Guyana Chronicle Online – 12/06/2007, 07:02 am

Beijing-Income growth, climate change, high energy prices, globalisation, and urbanisation are all converging to transform food production, markets, and consumption, according to a new report by the International Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI).

Gates Foundation funds unprecedented $13 million effort to unleash expertise of African women in the agricultural sciences

Checkbiotech – 12/06/2007, 06:37 am

NAIROBI, Kenya - Confronting the disparity between the role of African women in farming and their limited presence in the agriculture sciences, the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research (CGIAR) Gender & Diversity Program today launched an unprecedented $13 million effort that will support the fast-tracking of careers of at least 360 African women in agricultural research.

Rising food prices threaten world's poor New report examines the impact of growth, climate change, and biofuels'> Rising food prices threaten world's poor New report examines the impact of growth, climate change, and biofuels

Accra Daily Mail – 12/05/2007, 21:35 pm

Rising food prices threaten world's poor New report examines the impact of growth, climate change, and biofuels Income growth, climate change, high energy prices, globalization, and urbanization are all converging to transform food production, markets, and consumption, according to a new report by the International Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI).

Growth, climate change, and biofuels impacting on food prices

Biofuel Review – 12/05/2007, 11:07 am

Income growth, climate change, high energy prices, globalization, and urbanization are all converging to transform food production, markets, and consumption, according to a new report by the International Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI).

Plans mooted to keep women in agricultural fields

Africa Science News Service – 12/05/2007, 06:23 am

In a bid to ensure that agricultural science remain attractive to women, the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research (CGIAR) Gender and Diversity Program is setting aside funds aimed at developing careers of the few already in agriculture and stop others quitting to other fields.

Rising food prices threaten world's poor New report examines the impact of growth, climate change, and biofuels

Accra Mail – 12/05/2007, 01:30 am

Income growth, climate change, high energy prices, globalization, and urbanization are all converging to transform food production, markets, and consumption, according to a new report by the International Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI).

World Food Prices to continue rising; New report examines the impact of Economic Growth, Climate Change and Biofuels

FinFacts – 12/05/2007, 00:34 am

As a result, global food demand and prices are likely to rise, threatening the livelihoods and nutrition of poor people in developing countries. The report, , was released at the annual general meeting of the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research (CGIAR).

China - 04 Dec 07

Slow Food – 12/04/2007, 21:55 pm

A new report by the International Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI) details how global food demand and prices are likely to rise, creating great threat to the livelihoods and nutrition of the world's poorest people.

A report released today describes how changes in global food demand and likely food price rises threaten the world's poorest people. ...

Slow Food – 12/04/2007, 21:55 pm

A new report by the International Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI) details how global food demand and prices are likely to rise, creating great threat to the livelihoods and nutrition of the world's poorest people.

Poor put on a starvation diet

Sydney Morning Herald – 12/04/2007, 15:48 pm

Diverting agriculture to biofuels means higher prices for food and an even hungrier developing world, writes Daniel Lewis. A revolution in world food prices driven by population growth, economic development, climate change and biofuels is set to make life even worse for the world's poorest people.

IFPRI report: more free trade needed to tackle rising food prices; small farmers could benefit

Biopact – 12/04/2007, 12:57 pm

Income growth, climate change, high energy prices, globalization, and urbanization are all converging to transform food production, markets, and consumption, according to a new report by the International Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI).

Largest agricultural development partner trains researchers

TMCnet – 12/04/2007, 08:33 am

(Business Daily Update Via Thomson Dialog NewsEdge) Author: Tu Around 75,000 researchers have been trained by the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research (CGIAR) in developing countries recently, Wang Ren, the director of the CGIAR, said on Monday at the group's annual general meeting.

China vows to strengthen Int'l co-op on agriculture

China Economic Net – 12/04/2007, 06:48 am

.h1 { FONT-WEIGHT: bold; TEXT-JUSTIFY: inter-ideograph; FONT-SIZE: 22pt; MARGIN: 17pt 0cm 16.5pt; LINE-HEIGHT: 240%; TEXT-ALIGN: justify } .h2 { FONT-WEIGHT: bold; TEXT-JUSTIFY: inter-ideograph; FONT-SIZE: 16pt; MARGIN: 13pt 0cm; LINE-HEIGHT: 173%; TEXT-ALIGN: justify } .

CGIARs annual general meeting opens in Beijing

CCTV – 12/04/2007, 06:17 am

In Beijing the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research has kicked off its annual general meeting. The Washington-based research alliance works under the banner of using scientific research to reduce poverty, promote agricultural growth, and protect the environment.

China Vows to Strengthen Int'l Cooperation on Agriculture

CRIENGLISH.com – 12/04/2007, 06:05 am

China will make every effort to strengthen the international cooperation and communication on agricultural advancement. China's Vice Premier Hui Liangyu made the remarks in his message of congratulations to the ongoing annual general meeting of the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research, or CGIAR.

China's largest agricultural development partner trains 75,000 researchers in developing countries

Calibre Macro World – 12/03/2007, 20:30 pm

(Xinhua via COMTEX) -- Around 75, 000 researchers have been trained by the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research (CGIAR) in developing countries recently, Wang Ren, the director of the CGIAR, said here on Monday at the group's annual general meeting.

China's largest agricultural development partner trains 75,000 researchers in developing countries

People's Daily Online – 12/03/2007, 19:55 pm

Around 75, 000 researchers have been trained by the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research (CGIAR) in developing countries recently, Wang Ren, the director of the CGIAR, said in Beijing on Monday at the group's annual general meeting.

China's largest agricultural development partner trains 75,000 researchers in developing countries

Sina English – 12/02/2007, 12:31 pm

BEIJING, Dec. 3 (Xinhua) -- Around 75, 000 researchers have been trained by the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research (CGIAR) in developing countries recently, Wang Ren, the director of the CGIAR, said here on Monday at the group's annual general meeting.

China's largest agricultural development partner trains 75,000 researchers in developing countries

Ministry of Commerce - Republic of China – 12/04/2007, 01:09 am researchers have been trained by the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research (CGIAR) in developing countries recently, Wang Ren, the director of the CGIAR, said here on Monday at the group's annual general meeting.

Relevance of rice research recognized

CGIAR – 12/04/2007, 03:07 am

Los Baños, Philippines The work of rice researchers has received major encouragement as 2007 comes to a close, with staff at the International Rice Research Institute (IRRI) and their colleagues receiving widespread recognition and several major awards.

Rising Food Prices 'Threaten World's Poor'

Africa One World – 12/04/2007, 00:09 am

International Food Policy Research Institute Rising Food Prices Threaten World's Poor People New report examines the impact of growth, climate change, and biofuels Beijing -Income growth, climate change, high energy prices, globalization, and urbanization are all converging to transform food production, markets, and consumption, according to a new report by the International Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI).

CGIAR Trains 75,000 Researchers in Developing Countries

China Gate (Eng) – 12/03/2007, 23:57 pm

Around 75,000 researchers have been trained by the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research (CGIAR) in developing countries recently, Wang Ren, the director of the CGIAR, said on Monday at the group's annual general meeting.

World's poor threatened by rising food prices - report

Earthtimes.org – 12/03/2007, 23:37 pm

Beijing - Food prices are expected to keep rising worldwide in the years ahead due to a number of factors, in turn posing a threat to the world's poor, an international think tank warned Tuesday in a report issued in Beijing.

World's poor threatened by rising food prices

Khaleej Times – 12/03/2007, 23:34 pm

BEIJING - Food prices are expected to keep rising worldwide in the years ahead due to a number of factors, in turn posing a threat to the world's poor, an international think tank warned on Tuesday in a report issued in Beijing.

Rising food prices trend to cause shortage

UG Ppulse – 12/03/2007, 23:20 pm

Ultimate Media Global food demand and prices are projected to rise, making it difficult for many people in developing countries like Uganda to afford food.

World's poor threatened by rising food prices - report

Earthtimes.org – 12/03/2007, 22:10 pm

News | Beijing - Food prices are expected to keep rising worldwide in the years ahead due to a number of factors, in turn posing a threat to the world's poor, an international think tank warned Tuesday in a report issued in Beijing.

China's largest agricultural development partner trains 75,000 researchers in developing countries

EView Week – 12/03/2007, 15:08 pm

Beijing, Dec. 3 (Xinhua) -- Around 75,000 researchers have been trained by the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research (CGIAR) in developing countries recently, Wang Ren, the director of the CGIAR, said here on Monday at the group's annual general meeting.

Icrisat`s genebank gets $8mn from Italian trust

Business Standard – 12/02/2007, 23:56 pm

Italy-based Global Crop Diversity Trust (GCDT), an international fund established to ensure conservation and availability of plant genetic resources for food and agriculture, has entered into an agreement with the International Crops Research Institute for the Semi-Arid Tropics (Icrisat).

Meltwater News Inc. is a global specialist in online media monitoring. We help more than 10,000 of the world's most admired companies and organizations keep track of business critical information published online. Founded in Norway in 2001 we have grown to 30 offices in Europe, North America, Africa, Australia, and Asia. Meltwater News is fully owned by its founders and employees.

Privacy Policy | Contact Us

Copyright © Meltwater, Inc. 2007. All Rights Reserved.